

Pinot Gris, Adelaide Hills

2019 reviews

"Adelaide Hills is the home of The Other Wine Co's big brother Shaw & Smith – so no surprise they are diving into the world of Pinot Gris. And this is a good one, showing both power and complexity.

It has lifted pear tartin, touch of spice and floral fruits in a bright and fruit forward style – no need to wait for this wine to come around as it is ready to go right now. It has a great combination of crisp and quite zippy acidity combined with with some textural richness. It's also juicy and generous, with a touch of grip and a little sweetness to finish. Great package that is built to please."

92 points, Angus Hughson

2017 reviews

"Very light yellow colour. The aromas are subtle and faintly almond-like, while the palate is soft and fruity and has a trace of sweetness, which just leavens it a bit. A very attractive drink; clean, fresh and bright."

Huon Hooke

"Mouth-watering flavours with a zippy line of acidity. Bright and textural with lemon freshness. There is a contemporary savoury edge that adds interest and intrigue. Slides down easily."

Toni Paterson

2015 reviews

"Wow, a gris I agree with! Most sav blanc-ish, which is usually more a grigio-ish thing than grisly. That's more g's than you can eat, but try it anyway"

8.8/10, Max Crus